

Hello Red Class

We hope you have all had a good week, and have enjoyed the sun which has come back! We're glad the rain has stopped for now!

Thank you for continuing to send in work for us to see – we're glad to see some of you have done some of the reading comprehensions. We would have been doing lots of these together if we had been at school.

We hope you have listened to Hazel reading chapter 1 of the Iron Man and Christina reading chapter 2. Chapter 3 has been put online today, with Becca reading it to you – once you've listened to the chapter, please complete a comic book page to show what went on in the story. We look forward to looking through this work when we're back at school.

Hi from Christina - How are you all? I hope everyone is keeping well. We had lots of rain and hail last week, so I didn't spend so much time outside as I have been. I still went for a few bike rides and walks though, and luckily managed to dodge the rain!

My family and I have been working on this really tricky 1000 piece puzzle. Someone bought it for me this Christmas, and I didn't really think I'd ever get round to doing it, but it seems lockdown is the perfect time. It is the London Underground map, and if you look closely you can see the only bits we have left are white pieces, luckily there are 5 of us to try and finish it.

We've also been having fun doing lots of online quizzes with friends and family. We had picture rounds, music rounds and a mythical creatures round. Can you think of any mythical creatures?

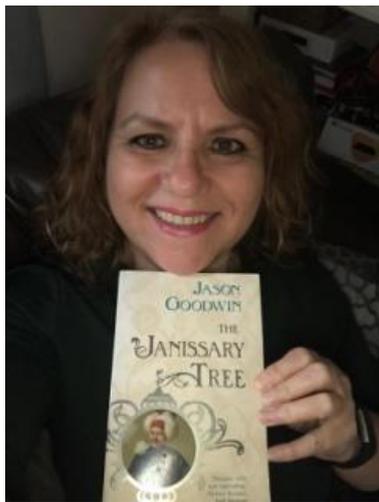

Hi from Becca – I've had a busy few days with my poor little kitten, Dexter. He got into a fight with another cat, and has a large sore patch on his back that got infected. We had to talk to the vet on Zoom, and then take him in for an operation. Poor Dexter is home again now, but has to wear a big collar to stop him licking his wound. He hates the collar, and is very cross with us for making him wear it!

I've also been busy starting to write reports for your grown ups about all the wonderful work you did when we were at school. It feels like a long time ago we were together in red class, but luckily I can remember all the great things you did!

My favourite thing this week was a walk with my family along the canal path, where we saw swans, and lots of boats. My daughter thought one of the boats was smiling at us – what do you think?

Hi from Duygu – I have been busy in the kitchen again this week and she has been cooking my children their favourite Turkish food. I can't wait to pick the vine leaves that have grown in my garden so that I can cook vegetarian stuffed vine leaves. I have also bought this food to feed the flowers in her pots so that they grow healthy. I have also been painting my daughter's bedroom, and I have just started reading this book – I have been very busy!

Bye for now,

From Becca, Christina and Duygu
