

Hello Red Class

It has been a few weeks since our last message, as we have had half term, and then we phoned you to say hello last week. It was lovely to speak with you!

Hi from Becca – Hello, it has been lovely to speak with some of you last week. I heard about people playing on new trampolines, playing in parks, making up dances, bike rides, lots of cooking, and lots of home learning you have been doing too! I have also been busy helping my children with their home learning, riding my bike, and gardening. The vegetables in the raised beds we built at the start of lockdown have grown, and we have tomato plants, bean, strawberries and lots of lettuce! Can you spot them in the pictures? There are also some tall sunflowers growing. I went with my family to a Black Lives Matter demonstration at the weekend. People came together to say they were angry that black people are not always treated in a good way. It was a small, local demo, and people kept to social distancing rules and almost everyone wore masks. I thought it was a very important demonstration to go to.

I hope you are all well, and keeping busy!

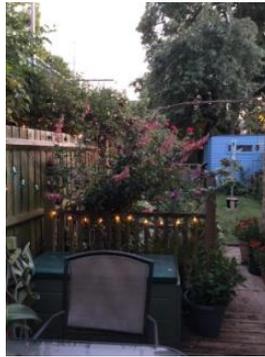

Hi from Christina - Hope you and your families are well? I really enjoyed speaking to some of you last week, and hearing about what you'd been up to, and also hearing about some of the new pets you have. I heard about kittens, and a puppy!! Looking forward to seeing some photos.

I have been back in school teaching key workers children 2 days a week, and on my days off I have been doing lots of cycle rides with my family. Today we cycled to a place called Broxbourne, it was lovely and sunny so when we got there we had a picnic on some grass. We were having a lovely time, until on the way back my son got a puncture. We didn't have any bike tools and there was not a bike shop nearby, so we had to walk with our bikes until my husband could come and get us in the car! On Saturday I cycled with my daughter to a Black Lives Matter demonstration in parliament square, we went early so it wasn't too busy, and everyone was wearing masks and gloves.

Hope to see you all soon, and I hope you are all staying happy and well.

Hi from Duygu – Tracy and I met up last week in my garden and we had a nice time just chatting and having lunch together. It was nice to see each other. I have been busy in the kitchen made kofte, traditional Turkish food, for my family. Have you ever eaten it at home or at a restaurant? I has also planted some new flowers and bought some lights for my garden - doesn't it look beautiful?

Enjoy the sunshine, keep busy, and we hope to be able to see you soon,
From Becca, Christina and Duygu
